Mann'zar: A Body Positivity App developed under LSR's Innovation Cell

A mental health phone app titled 'Mann'zar: Body Positivity, has been developed under LSR's Innovation Cell. Although body image issues are pervasive in society and are linked to other mental health conditions such as anxiety and eating disorders, very few avenues are available for their management. This was the reason underlying the development of the mobile app focusing on body positivity. In order to make the app accessible to all, there are no costs involved in downloading or using it. The app is specially geared towards Indian youth of all genders. It can all be used with ease in both Hindi and English. Manzar's features include:

- Affirmations: Positive statements encouraging self-love and self-acceptance
- Guided imagery: Meditation tracks and visuals to change one's perspective of themselves and their body and calm their minds
- Just Try It: Goals and challenges to support the development of self-confidence
- Gratitude list: To help users cultivate an optimistic mindset
- Role models: Quotes, personal stories, and videos to help users develop a sense of self-belief and self-worth
- Hope board: A customizable, user-designed area to provide hope during difficulties
- Contact a professional: A database of accessible hospitals and NGOs that can provide professional help for mental health issues

LSR students are breaking stereotypes through recycled products

The students of Lady Shri Ram College for Women (LSR) have founded an initiative Basta: Waste to Worth, to dispel the notion that women can't be entrepreneurs. Not only do they recycle waste products, they also impart entrepreneurial and livelihood skills to women of rural areas.

Project Auric

Vision: The name of the dishwashing liquid, 'Auric', is a derivative of the Latin word 'aurum' that refers to gold and such is the shine of this endeavour. Drawing inspiration from gold's lustre and purity, Project Auric aimed to provide a tested and safe alternative to raakh, which is both economically and environmentally sustainable. The initiative entailed targeting three objectives:

- Making women underprivileged communities financially independent by teaching them how to manufacture Auric
- Inculcating the spirit of cleanliness and spreading awareness about the importance of health and sanitation
- Encouraging environmental conservation by filling the liquid into recycled PET bottles

Target Community: Women were the primary target group and Project Auric collaborated with:

- The Nanak Foundation, a non-profit that operates out of Majhui village in the Rohtas district of Bihar
- Sukarya, a Gurgaon-based non-profit, where women belonging to the self-help groups of Haryana's Manger and Gwalpahadi villages.
- Prabhaav, an NGO that looks after individuals battling addiction.

Project: - Prayas Se Pragati

Project Prayas Se Pragati is a flagship project of Entrepreneurship Cell, LSR college. It is an educational program, which aims at providing school students with basic financial and entrepreneurial knowledge. This project enables us to do our bit towards educating the younger generations and helping them break through the vicious cycles of financial and entrepreneurial illiteracy, helping them realise their dreams, make an impact and drive future change.

For the same, we collaborate with NGOs and Schools to bridge the gap in our education system, break taboos, stereotypes and misinformation regarding entrepreneurship and make way for future entrepreneurs. So far, Project Prayas se pragati has successfully completed several financial literacy sessions, with a session on banking at Udayan Care and an introductory entrepreneurship event, in collaboration with Myra being the most recent events.

PROJECT RUHANI'S VISION TOWARDS A KINDER WORLD

OUR STORY

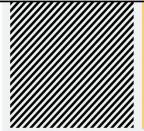

Project Ruhani, an initiative by Enactus Lady Shri Ram College for Women, envisions a society where mental health services are accessible and affordable to all. We wish to bring about a radical transformation in the education system through our school wellness program, in an effort to destigmatise mental health from a young age and inculcate the concepts of socio-emotional learning in the school curriculum and environment.

THE PROBLEM

Education is the foundation of any social change. Without a good education, peaceful, prosperous and productive societies cannot be sustained. (WHO, 2020). The education system in India, however, is characterised by a lengthy syllabus, rote learning and a stringent evaluation system. The severe academic stress poses to be a serious threat to children's mental health, academic performance and well-being, leaving no space for individuality and creative development for children.

THE SOLUTION

A radical transformation in the way the education system works is now the need of the hour. The National Education Policy draft, shared by the MHRD for public consultation, also states: "Students must develop not only cognitive skills - both 'foundational skills' of literacy and numeracy and 'higher-order cognitive skills such as critical thinking and problemsolving skills - but also social and emotional skills, also referred to as soft skills, including cultural awareness and empathy, perseverance and grit, teamwork and leadership, among others.

IMPACT

AWARENESS SESSIONS AND RESILIENCE CIRCLES

Ruhani has held 75+ offline and online sessions across 12 states in India. With the purpose of creating emotional bonding and a sense of togetherness between people, Ruhani conducted 100+ resilience circles.

SEL PROGRAM COLLABORATION

We launched our SEL programme this year and secured 14 collaborations with nonprofit organisations and schools. We successfully carried out our first collaboration with PROJECT BALIKA- a non-profit initiative incubated at Teach for India fellowship that works to educate and empower girls from less privileged backgrounds.

SHORT TERM SEL PROGRAM

To bring more kids under the purview of this education revolution, Project Ruhani innovated another model- a short term SEL program where kids can register directly. The Bootcamp, which was facilitated by our entrepreneurs, witnessed the participation of children in the age group of 8-10 years. This 1.5-month-long program facilitated their holistic development, enabling them to be more socially and emotionally aware.
