it's good

The expectations, a reflection of which is this form, seem to be quite supererogatory for a system (the system of higher education) that barely does anything to genuinely put the student at the centre. So, the suggestion would be to either actually do something to better the system or lower the expectations.

Unlike offline classes online lectures are much tiring for some reason and can easily get boring. I wouldn't say my network related issues (including issues with data plan per day) was primarily the reason to my selective presence in few lectures but it's one in few

I have not been well from past year due to weak immunity and also network issues Due to online classes i developed headache and anxiety.

Sometime I won't be able to join the class due to poor Network connection ..or electricity cut off.

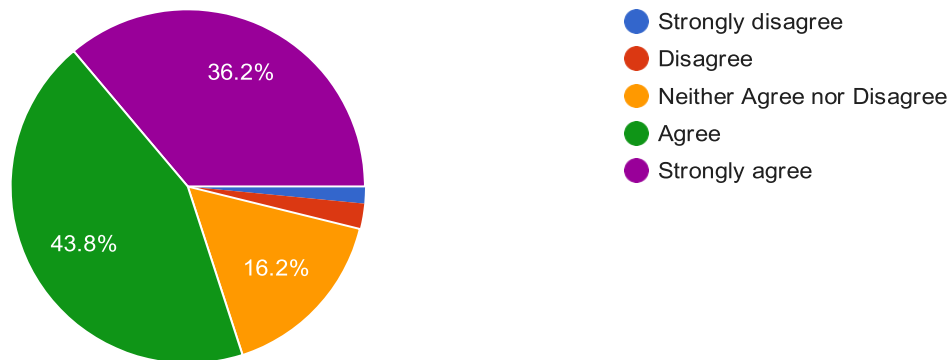

I couldn't be as regular as I wanted to be in the online mode because of frequent network connectivity issues.

Classes are very boring and monotonous in online lectures and the rush to finish syllabus triumphs engagement with the topic

It is difficult to concentrate in a online mode of study. Moreover internet connection is not very strong where I live

b) I participate in class discussions and help my teacher in making the classes interesting

But only in lectures that are engaging

Adjusting to online classes had been a struggle. The pandemic and uncertainty itself caused a lot of mental exhaustion.

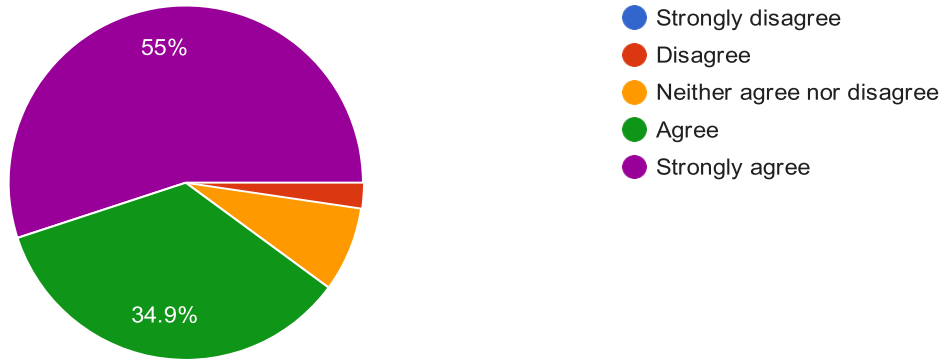

I lack confidence and don't get what is going on due to network and it becomes headache

In online mode I couldn't participate in discussions as much as I did in offline classes because of network issues. Also I feel discussions in online classes can get very inconvenient and messy due to connectivity issues.

I feel less confident about my answers and doubt myself in telling them. And yet times I am not prepared enough .

c) I approach my teachers for support in case I am facing difficulties or doubts in academics or socio-emotional challenges

Not in papers. Unless i see a room for improvement in certain topics or papers i have not personally approached a professor for feedback

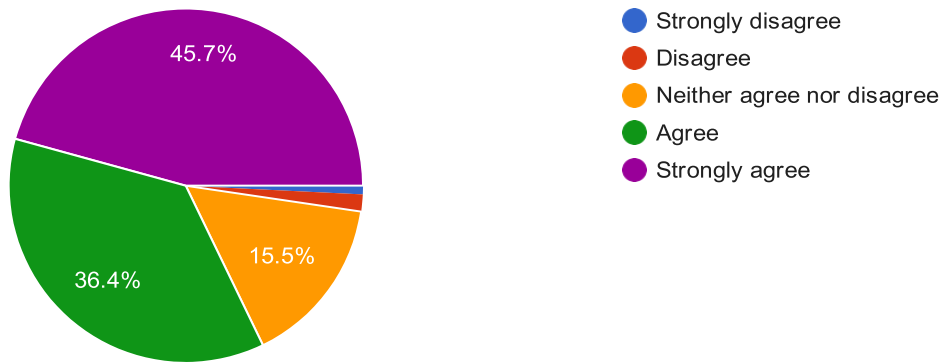

Because the professor are often burdened and cannot provide individual feedback.

Some professors give remarks on their own

We ask, but the feedback is generic
